A ROUND OF TALK.

Contrary to Tradition.

We thought he was a genius,
But we've rather lost respect;
In several particulars
He doesn't seem correct.
He's industrious and clever;
Makes a speech or sings a song,
But his clothes all seem to fit him
And his hair is none too long.

The grocer and the tailor
Says he always pays his debts.
The town he's never painting,
And his family never frets,
Of course he's just plain people;
Nothing picturesque nor quaint.
We thought he was a genious,
But we're kind o' glad he ain't
—Washington Star.

STOCK LAW—Some of the people of the Mackville district are making war on the stray stock that is being pastured on the public highway by owners who fail to provide pasturage of their own. A call for an election will be held to vote on the proposition of passing a law to prohibit the running at large of stock, the law to apply only to the Mackville district. Such a law, as a rule, does not always find favor in a rural district, but it is said that there is a strong sentiment in favor of it just now among the residents of that neighborhood on account of the nuisance created by the promiscus running at large of stock

REFUSED THE PRISONER—George Catlett our county jailer has set a precedent in the matter of recognizing the authority of military officers in civil prosecution by refusing to receive a private of the local military company who had been put under arrest by his captain. The soldier was drunk and disorderly at drill and Capt. McElroy had him taken to jail under a detail of soldiers but the Jailer refused to receive the prisoner without a civil warrant so the offender was allowed to depart. Mr. Catlett acted under the advice of an attorney and believes he is justified in his action notwithstanding the fact that the practice has been carried on at other places It would be good discipline for these ducks who attend the drill drunk to be left at home when the company attends the encampment next week. They will certainl not reflect any credit to their company.

GIVE CREDIT—We believe in giving credit where credit is due and just now we desire to call attention to the good work being done by some of the members of the Board of Town Trustees. The new rock crusher has been put in operation and teams have been busy hauling the new metal on the streets. As a rule the office of trustee of a town is not a desirable position. There is no pay in it and small thanks and if anything goes wrong the trustees are the ones against whom the "knocking" is directed. It is true too that very few men, even though they be good citizens otherwise, make good trustees for the reason of a lack of interest in the affairs of the office. There has been a large amount of complaint against the condition of our streets until now the present Board of Trustees has taken the matter in hand and promises to put the streets in first class condition. It will cost money, but the taxpayers who have been howling about poor streets will have the bill to pay and if they get what they want they should not complain.

CHANGES—There seems to be an epidemic of change among the local business firms several have been consumated lately. Mr. J hn C Shader, who has for years been one of the town's most successful grocerymen, has sold his business to B. B. and W. D. McElroy and has accepted a position as traveling salesman for the Menne Candy Co. Mr Shader's change probably means his removal with his family to Memphis which will be a distinct loss to the community as he is one our most enterprising citizens. The McElroy brothers are both capable business men and well equipped to continue to the wants of the patrons Mr. W. E. Leachman has bought out the stock and business of Mr. John Y. Mayes furniture store Mr. Mayes will devote his attention exclusively to his undertaking business while Mr. Leachman will enlarge his stock and carry a fine line of furniture. As stated last week Mr. E. S. Mayes, Jr., the grocery man, has sold his store to Harry O'Nan and the invoice is being taken and the transfer made this week.

SUCCESS—The annual fair of the Washington County Colored Fair Association was a big success this year and the attendance on the last day was a record breaker. It is always a big day for the colored folks is this last day of their annual fair. It is a great gathering day and they come from all the country about and from Louisville on a special 'scursion. The average attendant at a colored fair pays little attention to the exhibit of live stock, but they enjoy the freedom of the occasion where the beer flows freely and if necessary to fill in a festive game of craps may be disclosed for the "dead game sports." It must be said however to the credit of the Springfield Colored Fair managers that they maintained good order and several attendants who got gay were landed in jail during the day

What is Life?

In the last analysis knows, but we do know that it is under strict law. Abuse that law even slightly, pain results. Irregular living means derangement of the organs resulting in Constipation, Headache or Liver trouble. Dr. King's New Life Pills quickly readjust this. It's gentle, yet thorough. Only 25c at C. J. Haydon's.

Distress After Eating Cured.

Judge W. T. Holland, of Greensburg, La., who is well and favorably known, says: "Two years ago I suffered greatly from indigestion. After eating, great distress would invariably result, lasting for an hour or so and my nights were restless. I concluded to try Kodol Dyspepsia Cure and it cured me entirely. Now my sleep is refreshing and digestion perfect." Sold by C. J. Haydon.

Rare Relics.

Dr. Thomas B. Nichols, of this place has an Indian war bottle which is quite accessiory. The neck of the bottle represents the head and neck of an Indian squaw. The vessel is made of clay burnt to a bright red hue. It is 14 inches in height and holds about three quarts.

Dr. Nicholls purchased the bottle from an Indian woman several years ago, while he was on a prospecting trip in the Sierra Madre mountains of Mexico. The old woman of whom he purchased the vessel informed him that it was 350 years old and had been in almost constant use. A cross on the breast and beads around the neck of the bottle show that it was made after the conquest of Mexico.

The bottle is highly prized by Dr. Nicholls and he expects to exhibit it at the World's Fair.

Another article highly prized by Dr. Nichols is an old book printed at Newport, Rhode Island, in 1749. The work is entitled the "Fruit of Solitude." and relates to the conduct of human life. The book contains many reflections and maxims and altogether is a very interesting little volume. It originally belonged to Jonathan C. Nichols, the great great grandfather of Dr. Nichols, and has been handed down to the fifth generation of the Nichols family.

Dr Nichols' aunt, Miss Rachel Nichols brought the old volume with her from Newport in 1850, since which time it has been in the posession of Dr Nichols' father, until a few years ago when it came into Dr Nichols' posession, who values it as a family heirloom and would not part with it at any price —Kentucky Standard.

Washington Letter

Secretary Hitchcock has announced the selection of Mr. Charles J. Bonaparte as the special investigator who will probe the Indian land scandals. Mr. Bonaparte, it will be remembered, is the grandson of Jerome Bonoparte. youngest brother of the first Napoleon, and the famous "Betsy Patterson." once a leading belle of Baltimore. He is a "liberal republican" and a man of ability and unquestioned integrity. He, it is, who has been retained by the President to assist in the prosecution of the prosecution of the legal cases growing out of the Postoffice investigation, along with Holmes Conrad. Just how Mr. Bonaparte is to conduct these prosecutions and at the same time investigate the affairs of the Indian Territory is difficult to understand, but that he will manage to do justice to both, or will give up the former, is the confident expectation of all who know him.

Secretary Hitchcock has offered to Bonaparte the assistance of Indian Inspectors Frank Churchill and S. F. O'Fallon and any further assistance he may desire, but it is by no means certain that Mr. Bonaparte will accept the services of men themselves closely associated with the affairs he is called to investigate. In the case of Inspector Churchill, for instance, there are on record charges against him alleging that he invested in town lots in the town of Sulphur, Indian Territory, at a time when he was charged with selling the lots for he interests of the community. While these charges are regarded as baseless at the Department of the Interior, they will, presumably, require the investigation of Mr Bonaparte before they can be ultimately disposed of It has been suggested that Bonaparte would do well to ask Fourth Assistant Postmas er General Bristow for the use of two or three of the Postoffice inspectors. These inspectors, it is pointed out, have had long training in ferreting out frauds of the character charged against Indian Territory officials and, entering on the work without any connection with those officials, would be in a position to do thorough and effective work, without fear of favor, whereas those subordinates of the Department of the Interior whom Bonaparte selected might be hampered to some extent by the knowledge that when the investigation was concluded they would become essentially the subordinates of the very men, in some instances at least, of whose conduct they had passed.

The names of the individuals indicted by the District of Columbia grand jury a week ago have at last been made public They are Machen, Beavers. Eugene D. Scheble, of Toledo, Ohio, Jas. W. Erwin, superintendent of free delivery for the territory west of the Rocky Mountains, Isaac S. McGiehand and George H. Huntington, of the Columbia Supply Company, of New York. All have been arrested with the exception of Erwin. Machen was indicted on every charge so that there are now thirteen indictments against him, ten for "conspiracy to defraud the government" and three for accepting and asking bribes. He is still out on bail but his bond has been increased to $30,000. It is estimated from the indictments already found that Machen has defrauded the government of not less than $250,000.

First in The County.

Mr. W. B. Edwards, the surveyor of Boyle county, is the first man in the county to own an autobicycle. He purchased the machine in Lexington last Monday at a cost of $200 and traveled from that city to his home at the rate of thirty miles an hour. Mr. Edwards is the greatest wheelman in the county. Last year he made a trip to New York and Canada. He rode from Perryville to Canada in ten days.—Danville News.

Women Fight.

Last Saturday, on Scuffle Creek, about two miles south west of Rush Branch, a difficulty arose between Mrs. Nan Mason and Mrs. Sallie Goode, two neighboring women, in which Mrs. Mason shared badly. The trouble came up over Mrs. Mason's hogs which had broken into Mrs. Goode's cornfield. Mrs. Goode, it is claimed, was trying to drive the hogs out of the field when Mrs. Mason entered and began to abuse her and throw stones at her. The affair reached an ugly climax when the women clinced and Mrs. Goode used a knife upon her assailant with painful effect, cutting her near the temple, once on the neck and once or twice on the left hand and arm. Mrs. Mason, bleeding profusely, was carried by a neighbor to a physician who dressed her wounds. She is doing fairly well as the wounds were not deep it is thought she will soon recover. Our Rush Branch correspondent who gave us this account of the affair remarked "bad fences often make trouble between neighbors." He might have very appropriately added it is bad enough for men to become involved in troubles of this kind, but ghastly for women, mothers of families, to do so. Mrs. Goode claims the knife she happened to have with her at the time she was assaulted she had been pealing apples with for her children. It is a very unfortunate affair and no doubt both women now think the trouble is greater than the worth of both the hogs and the corn.—Lebanon Enterprise.

Battleship Kentucky In Colors.

The Louisville, Henderson and St. Louis Railway has just been completed for distribution a large order of pictures of the Battleship Kentucky, which is a work of art and should be in every Kentucky home. The picture is reproduced from a very fine large copyrighted photograph by Mr. Enrique Mueller, the official photographer for the United States Navy, taken as the ship is leaving New York harbor for a cruise. It is done in colors, the grey fighter slowly plowing its way through the carefully shaded green of the sea, and carrying at the top of her flag-staff, the stars and stripes in their natural red, white and blue.

It is admiralably suited for framing, but as it is gotten out on heavy, five-ply enameled cardboard, it will prove an ornament to any home without framing. Six cents in postage sent to L. J. Irwin, G. P. A. of the popular Henderson Route, at Louisville, Ky., will bring this beautiful picture to your home.

His Life Saved by Chamberlain's Colic Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy.

"B. L. Byer, a well known cooper of this town, says he believes Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy saved his life last summer. He had been sick for a month with what the doctors call bilious dysentery and could get nothing to do him any good until he tried this remedy. I gave him immediate relief," says B T. Little, merchant, Hancock, Md For sale by Haydon's drug store.

Badly Hurt.

While returning Sunday night on the excursion train from Louisville, Mr. William Cowherd, the genial representative of B. F. Wooley stave factory at this point, was seriously hurt.

The train had reached Chicago, this county, and was pulling out slowly, Mr. Cowherd was standing on the rear platform of the last coach when suddenly a stone, the size of a man's fist struck him on the left jaw breaking off a tooth and cutting a hole through the flesh part of the cheek just above the bone. On reaching Lebanon he went to Dr. Kelly's office where the wound was dressed and sewed up. Mr. Cowherd says just before the stone struck him he saw the forms of several men in the darkness near the station and thinks one of them threw the missile at the passing coach. The matter has been placed in the hands of a railroad detective who will use every effort to bring the guilty party to justice.—Lebanon Enterprise.

Mrs. George Barnes Dead.

Dr. J. C. Bogle received a telegram yesterday announcing the death of Mrs. George O. Barnes at Sanibel Island, Florida, on the 14th inst. Mrs. Barnes is well known throughout the country, and it is with the deepest sorrow that our readers will learn of her death. Mrs. Barnes was, before her marriage, Miss Jane Cowan, and her girlhood days were spent in Danville She is was a sister of Mr. Dud Cowan, of this city, and an aunt of Dr. J. C. Bogle. In 1855 she was married to Rev. George O. Barnes, the evangelist, and left immediately with her huscand for the missionary field in India, where they remained during the celebrated Sepoy mutiny. After living there seven years, where his children, Will and Miss Marie, were born, Mr. Barnes returned with his family to America on account of his impaired health. Throughout Mr. Barnes' evangelistic career, which has occasioned several trips to foreign lands, and one or two trips around the world, Mrs. Barnes has been his constant companion and has taken part in thousands of his services. She was a devoted Christian, a kind and loving mother, and has lived a truly exemplary life. Her friends throughout Kentucky are numbered by hundreds. As the message conveying the intelligence of her death was only a short telegram, none of the details of her burial, etc., are yet known. Her husband is at present evangelising in the mountains of Kentucky.—Danville Advocate.

"I'm on the road to complete recovery." Best on earth for Liver and Kidney troubles and all forms of Stomach and Bowel Complaints. Only 50c. Guaranteed by C. J. Haydon.

UNBOUNDED FAITH IN MI-O-NA

Wood & Campbell Will Refund Money If It Fails to Increase Pleah and Cure Dyspepsia.

"We have been in the drug business long enough to know that there are very few remedies that can be sold on a guarantee to refund the money if they do not give satisfaction.

"We have sold so much Mi-o-na and seen such remarkable results following its use that we welcome the chance to convince any doubter of its merit, by offering to give with each package of Mi-o-na a written guarantee to refund the money if it does not give an increase in weight, regulate the digestion and restore health.

"If you cannot call at our store, send us the price of Mi-o-na, 50c by mail, and we will forward you a regular size box, postage paid, with the same agreement to refund the money if it does not give perfect satisfaction."

Anyone who has been losing flesh, or who has always been too thin, should use Mi-o-na. Thinness and scrawniness are signs that the food is not properly assimilated and that you do not get the nourishment from it that you should.

Mi-o-na mingles with the food you eat, aids its assimilation, tones up and strengthens the digestive organs and puts the whole system in a proper physical condition.

Remember that you risk nothing in buying Mi-o-na. If it fails to give the desired effect, the cost is trifling. If it fails, Wood & Campbell will pay back the remedy themselves.

The political campaign is waxing warm and the mud-slinging has begun. One of the latest passes was between Gov. Beckham and Bill Owens in which they passed left-handed compliments out to each other without stint. The goverpor accused Owens of being a debauchee and other things while Owens referred to the governor as the "Little Boy Blue of Bardstown, who if the laws had been enforced would have been sold long ago for vagrancy".

Among the various charges brought against the candidates in the present campaign was one against Beckham by J. C. Speight, candidate for Secretary of State, which we should think would call for more talk. Mr. Speight charges Gov. Beckham with having offered to pardon a prisoner provided $800 was paid into the Democratic campaign fund. This is a very serious accusation and Mr. Speight has a good deal of nerve to make it unless he can "back it up."

At 5:16 o'clock Tuesday afternoon the jury in the case of Curtis Jett, on trial at Cynthiana, for the murder of James Cockrell, returned a verdict of guilty and fixed the punishment at death. There is a scramble on in the Eleventh Congressional district for the place left vacant by the death of Congressman Vincent Boreing. At least a dozen candidates have been announced. An election will be called at an early date.

John Shewmaker and sister, Miss Cordia, of Mackville, were the pleasant guests of Misses Minnie and Bettie Mattingly Sunday.

We are now enjoying plenty of political talk on every hand. The Powers verdict seems to be the bone of discussion and it is not strange to hear men saying what they would do if they were the Governor and at the same time those persons could not find their way out of the Governor's mansion much less to dictate his business. If anyone wants any information on the issues of the present campaign they may call on a few here and will be accomodated but we will not vouch for it being correct.

John Montgomery and daughter, Miss Mattie, have returned from a visit to relatives in Larue county. Mr. Montgomery says "there are plenty of pretty girls in Larue" and this has aroused Capt Settles who has requested the base ball team to elect a manager to act in his absence for he is off for Larue.

John Shewmaker bought several head of cattle from "Riah" Shewmaker, price unknown.

We desire to correct a statement that appeared in the Fenwick letter last week in regard to the game of ball played here between the team of that place and our boys. The correspondent stated that our boys had a pitcher from Harrodsburg and six players from Virginia which was a sad mistake. Our boys had no Harrodsburg pitcher and only two boys from Willisburg played with our team while three from Willisburg played with the Fenwick team. They were also supplimented by Mackville and Tick Creek and Brown, who is one of the best pitchers in the county, did their twirling and it was done to order, but he lacked fielders. The score was 11 to 3 in favor of Hillsboro.

WORK AND REST.

When They Alternate Perfectly, a Man Will Enjoy Both.

After work comes rest. When they alternate perfectly a man may prepare to enjoy real happiness. When they alternate perfectly a man will enjoy both the work and the rest that follows it.

Nature is a just old lady. She seldom gives a man more than he needs. If he elects to live a lazy life she lets his muscles get flabby and his brain go sleepy. She never permits him to long possess a faculty or a nerve or a muscle or a sinew that he does not use.

The proper way to keep your muscles or your brains is to use 'em up and let nature provide you with a fresh supply. Nature is assisted in this work by rest. One may rest sometimes by seeking a change of labor. Labor thus becomes a recreation—re creation.

To live happily in this world it is not enough to know how to work. A man must also know how to rest. The man who knows only how to work will soon wear out. If he doesn't wear out immediately his work will suffer in some way. No man can do his best work unless he alternates it with a little play or a little rest.

A man who can't drop his work from his mind as readily as he can drop his tools from his hands had better take a few weeks off to study the rest question. His nerves are not what they should be.

If a man wishes to keep his nerve, let him avoid nerves.—Pittsburg Dispatch.

Ivy Clad Buildings.

So long as the walls of a building are sound and the bricks or stones, well cemented together, offer no fissures or cracks for the plant to force its way into, there is nothing whatever to fear. Should the ivy, however, find an opening, and so thrust itself into the wall, the natural and continuous expansion of its parts will tend to loosen the stones and hasten the decay of the building.

A fair growth of ivy on sound walls that allow of no advances beyond the superficial attachment of the claspers, or aerial roots, as they are called, is altogether beneficial. It promotes dry joints and warmth, counteracts the corrosive action of the atmosphere and is at once a shelter and an ornament.

These aerial roots are not sources of nutrition, but merely serve as mechanical support to the climbing ivy. The contention that they sap the whole of the moisture from mortar, leaving it excessively dry and crumbling, has therefore no foundation in fact.—London Standard.

A Disguised Toast.

At one time the officers under Lord Howe refused to drink his health at their mess, for, though a splendid admiral, he was not popular in the navy on account of a certain shyness and want of tact with those about him. The chaplain, who was a protege of his lordship, was mortified at this and determined that the officers should drink to Lord Howe. When called upon for a toast one day he said, "Well, gentlemen, I can think of nothing better at this moment than to ask you to drink the first two words of the Third Psalm, for a Scriptural toast for once may be taken from one of my cloth." The toast was drunk. Not one of the officers indicated by word or look that he was ignorant of the words alluded to. On referring to the Bible it was found that the Third Psalm begins, "Lord, how are they increased?"

Consumption

The only kind of consumption to fear is "neglected consumption."

People are learning that consumption is a curable disease. It is neglected consumption that is so often incurable.

At the faintest suspicion of consumption get a bottle of Scott's Emulsion and begin regular doses.

The use of Scott's Emulsion at once, has, in thousands of cases, turned the balance in favor of health.

Neglected consumption does not exist where Scott's Emulsion is.

AN INGENIOUS BURGLAR.

How He Opened a Safe Without Tools or Explosives.

An extraordinary account is given of how a safe was opened by a robber who had at his disposal no instrument of any kind, but operated merely with his finger nail. The person who accomplished the feat revealed his intention of robbing the iron safe in a hotel to another young man, who happened to be the cousin of the hotel proprietor.

As a matter of course the proposed exploit to rob was revealed to the owner of the hotel, and a little before midnight, when it was to be put into execution, a couple of detectives were concealed behind the office counter.

About time afterward the robber entered the office gently, without either tools or explosives wherewith to open the massive iron receptacle, the combination of which it was evident he did not know. He had, however, resorted to an ingenious plan of his own.

He had pared the nail of his index finger on the right hand until the blood vessels were exposed. Then by placing the sensitive wound on the combination lock he could distinguish the movements of the tumblers as they fell. For more than an hour did he work, and at last there came a sharp click, and he swung back the doors of the safe.

He was in the act of filling his pockets with the valuable papers it contained when a damper was thrown upon his activity by the sudden grasp of the detectives, under whose escort he was taken to prison.—London Tit-Bits.

Danger In "Home Remedies."

"The trouble with poor persons who try to doctor themselves before coming here," said a physician in a public dispensary, "is that they do not know the first thing about the 'simple remedies,' as they call them, that they use. Oftentimes they do themselves serious injury through sheer ignorance. I had a man in here the other day who had taken half an ounce of cholera mixture. Somebody had told him to take half a teaspoonful. It is the same way with paregoric, sweet nitre, ammonia and other well known household remedies. Persons who trust to their memory are likely to get mixed and either take an overdose or use the wrong medicine. A woman came in here suffering from the effects of a drug that she should never have obtained except on a physician's prescription. It was the big overdose and her prompt application for relief that saved her. When I scolded her she showed me a clipping from one of the magazines advising its use. The dose prescribed was enough to kill a horse."—New York Times.

The Menu Card In Its First Form.

In its old fashioned form the menu was usually written large on cards of such imposing dimensions that room for one only could be found at each end of the board. In the mediæval dinner this aid to selection must have been an absolute necessity, for the mediæval dinner was a nine days' affair. It was divided into courses, as are our own dainty meals, but whereas nowadays the diner has a general idea that deb will follow soup and that entrees will be succeeded by relish, it can conceive generally the sort of demand that each course will make upon his appetite and digestion. there was no possible organ to which it was going to happen at an early English dinner, and close study fails to reveal the existence of any principle of arrangement.

Discrediting an Astrologer.

A certain king says a tale from the Persian, had an astrologer. "How many years of life remain to me?" The wise man replied "Ten." The king became very despondent and betook himself to one stricken with a sickness, to his bed. His vizier, who possessed great wisdom, sent for the seer and in the king's presence asked him, "How many years have you to live?" He replied, "Twenty." The vizier ordered that he should that very hour be executed in the king's presence. The king was satisfied and commended the sagacity. The calf offered by Abraham, the ox of Moses, the whale of Jonah, the ass of Balaam, the ram of Ishmael, the cat of Solomon, the camel of the prophet Saleh, the cuckoo of Balkis, the dog of the seven sleepers and Al Borak, the animal which carried Mohammed to heaven.

Moon Superstitions.

The eclipse of the moon is full of portent to the Macedonian Mohammedans. It indicates bloodshed. It is met with reports of firearms, and the imaum call from the minarets the faithful to public prayers in the mosques. This recalls in a striking manner the practices of many savage and barbaric nations. The great nations of Asia, such as the Hindoos and the Chinese, still cling to the belief in the eclipse monster. The latter meet it with prayers, like the Turks. But even in civilized Europe, both ancient and modern, one finds numerous proofs of this superstition. The Romans came to the succor of the afflicted moon by dinging firebrands into the air, by the blare of trumpets and the clang of brazen pots. The superstition survived through the middle ages into a very late period. France, Wales and Ireland offer many instances as late as the seventeenth century.

A Temple of Divorce.

So long ago as 1250 the wife of a Japanese regent obtained from the government permission to rescue women from the hands of cruel husbands. The means she took were very simple. A new sect of Buddhism known as the Zen was just then being formed. In the temple of the Zen sanctuary was established for fleeing wives. When they wished separation or divorce from their husbands, they could claim protection under the wing of the temple across the threshold, government officials would not be allowed to interfere, still less the furious husbands. This "temple of divorce" was supreme inquire on matters of matrimonial disagreement. The practice of the "privilege of the temple" was maintained for over 600 years.

Facts About Animal Structure.

The complexity of animal structure is marvelous. A caterpillar contains more than 2,000 muscles. In a human body are some 2,000,000 perspiration glands, communicating with the surface by ducts, having a total length of some ten miles, while that of the arteries, veins and capillaries unpet by very great. The blood contains millions of corpuscles, each a structure in itself. The rods in the retina, which are supposed to be the ultimate recipients of light, are estimated at 80,000,000, and Meinert has calculated that the gray matter of the brain is built of at least 600,000,000 cells.

The Animals in Heaven.

According to the Mohammedan's belief, there are ten animals in heaven, they form the following strange menagerie: The calf offered by Abraham, the ox of Moses, the whale of Jonah, the ass of Balaam, the ram of Ishmael, the cat of Solomon, the camel of the prophet Saleh, the cuckoo of Balkis, the dog of the seven sleepers and Al Borak, the animal which carried Mohammed to heaven.

GYPSY RETICENCE.

If Was Not Proof Against Charles Godfrey Leland.

Charles Godfrey Leland, author of the "Hans Breitmann" ballads, had a passion for studying the race of gypsies and at the same time great human sympathy with them. The fact that he was the principal living authority on the gypsy tongue and customs gave him little pleasure compared with the delight of being hailed as brother by gypsy horse traders at English fairs and gypsy musicians in Russia and Austria.

One day in Philadelphia he met three dark men whom he knew to be of an ancient stock. He was quite sure that they could speak a language which contained roots of Sanskrit, Hindoo and Persian. Yet they would make no display of it. They would, like their race, deny all knowledge of it as well as the fact of their gypsy blood.

He addressed them in Italian, and they answered fluently. He changed to obscure tongues of the east, and again they replied.

"Have you got through all your languages?" he inquired at last.

"Yes, signor, all of them."

"Isn't there one left behind which you have forgotten? Think a minute."

"No, signor, we have not."

"What, not one?"

"Signor, you have seen every egg in the basket."

Leland looked the man fixedly in the eye and put a question in Romany. There was a startled glance from one to the other and then a silence. He asked them, again in Romany, "Won't you talk with a gypsy brother?"

That opened the gates. They shook his hands in great emotion and tried to tell him how happy they were in having met some one who knew them.—Youth's Companion.

A Good Suggestion.

"When I write a story," said the struggling young author, "I make out a list of ten surprises that I think might fit it, and I usually get quickly close to the end of the list before I sell it."

The Cabbage Patch

Mrs Alice Hegan Rice is to return from England in time to crown her honeymoon voyage there by witnessing Liebler & Co's. production of "Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch" at Macauley's Theatre, Louisville, Ky., on October 5th next. When she woo instantly fame by her masterpiece, she was Miss Alice Caldwell Hegan. She dedicated "Lovey Mary", however, to her husband, Cale Young Rice "who (to quote her own words) taught me the secret of plucking roses from a cabbage patch." Her first sketches of the now immortal Mrs. Wiggs were written for the Authors' Club of Louisville of which Mrs. Flexner, who has dramatized Mrs. Rice's stories is also a prominent member. The young authoress little dreamed at the time that she had discovered a famous new realm in literature, and created a half-humorous, half-pathetic figure that was to touch and win the heart of the entire nation.

JOHN O'GROAT'S HOUSE.

A Famous Domicile That Was Long a Landmark In Britain.

In the reign of James IV. of Scotland John O'Groat and his two brothers, Malcolm and Gavin, arrived at Caithness and bought the lands of Warse and Duglasby, near the beach at the mouth of Pentland firth, the northeastern extremity of the mainland of Scotland. In time their families increased until there were eight households of the same name. They lived as neighbors in the greatest peace and amity, each year holding a festival in the original house. At one of these annual gatherings the question of precedence arose among the younger members, and they disputed as to whom should sit nearest the "head of the table" or enter the room first.

The old grandfather, Johnny O'Groat of history, was made arbitrator. He promised to have all satisfactorily settled by the time of the next annual meeting. Accordingly he built an eight sided house in which to hold the annual jubilee. This octagonal domicile was fitted with a door and a window on each side and a round table in the center. This arrangement made it possible for each family of the O'Groats to enter by his own door and to sit at a table which was practically "without a head."

This famous house was long a landmark in Britain and even to this day is one of the Englishman's starting points of measurement, "Land's End to John'y O'Groat's" signifying from one end of England to the other.

Sir Boyle Roche.

In every account of the Irish parliament Sir Boyle Roche comes in with the persistency of King Charles' head in Mr. Dick's memorial. His "bird" is as well known as the phenix and bids fair to share its immortality.

"Sure, Mr. Speaker," said Sir Boyle on the occasion that has made him famous, "how could a man be in two places at once—unless he were a bird?"

But Sir Boyle is not a mere creation of legend. He was a real living man, a fine, bluff, soldierlike old gentleman, holding some post at the vice regal court, sitting for a government borough and always voting faithfully for the "castle." The debate one night was on sinecures, which Curran had indignantly denounced, and, twitted by one of the opposite side on some personal inconsistency in the matter, he replied hotly:

"Sir, I am the guardian of my own honor."

To which Sir Boyle neatly rejoined:

"Then the gentleman himself has got a very pretty sinecure."—All the Year Round.

Animals and Telegraph Poles.

"A strange thing is the effect of electrical energy on birds and wild beasts," says a telegraph lineman quoted in the Philadelphia Record. "Woodpeckers are continually tapping telegraph poles. In the country you will find every where poles honeycombed by the sturdy bills of woodpeckers. The birds mistake the humming sound inside the poles for the humming of insects, and it is to get at these supposed insects that they make their perforations.

"Bears, on the other hand, think the humming comes from bees, and they overturn the stones at the pole's base in their endeavor to get at the honey. Wolves are afraid of the sound. A wolf won't go near a telegraph pole under any circumstances."

An Appetizer.

In the family of Mr. H., treasurer of one of our states, was a small boy of four who was the possessor of a fine rat terrier. One day the dog unfortunately disappeared, and the child, Ralph, was heartbroken. Soon afterward Mrs. H. gave an informal dinner to other state officers and their wives, and Master Ralph was allowed to be at the table under promise of good behavior. Things went on smoothly till the meat course, when a fine roasted pig was brought in, and Ralph thought his long lost pet was going to be served to the guests. He arose in his chair, pointed at the pig and with tears in his eyes and voice cried: "Oh, my doggie, my doggie! I want my doggie!"—Good Housekeeping.

Lincoln on Swearing.

Senator Fessenden once came roaring at President Lincoln over a question of patronage. The president listened till the storm was over, then asked:

"You are an Episcopalian, aren't you, Pessenden?"

"Yes, sir; I belong to that church."

"I thought so. You Episcopalians all swear alike. Seward is an Episcopalian. Stanton is a Presbyterian; you ought to hear him swear."—The True Abraham Lincoln."

HOT SHOT FOR OLLIE.

Captain Sweeney Shows Up Hefty Congressman's Record.

REPLIES TO CHARGES REGARDING GOEBEL RACE.

(Evening Post Special)

LEBANON, KY.,—Your correspondent met Capt. W. H. Sweeney, who is a candidate for re-election as Commonwealth's Attorney, and asked him if he had read what Congressman Ollie James had said concerning him in his scathless speech at Campbellsville.

"Yes," replied the Captain, "and since you have asked me, I will give you a few facts I heard a portion of Mr. James' speech, and also read a few facts from it. I don't suppose anyone ever considered anything seriously which emanated from the baby elephant of the first district. I never see Ollie but I am forcibly reminded of what Sunset Cox said about the Hon. Owen Lovejoy, in suggesting a fitting epitaph for Mr. Lovejoy's tombstone, which slightly changed as to name would read as follows:

"'Here the remains of Ollie James lies.
Little in everything, except in size.
What, though his bushy body fills this space,
Yet through hell's keyhole crept his little soul.'"

"Many persons, and even some good friends, have been led to believe that because of my opposition to Senator Goebel, in his candidacy for the Governorship, that I was personally hostile to him, which had no foundation in fact.

HELPED GOEBEL.

"At the Lexington convention in 1896 the committee refused to report Senator Goebel's name as a member of the State Central or State Executive Committee, and ignored him altogether, before the report was adopted by the courtesy of Mr. Brouston, who was Chairman of the convention. I offered as an amendment to the committee's report a resolution which was reported by Brouston and others, placing Senator Goebel upon the committee as an honorary member from the State-at-large, and advocated its adoption by the convention.

"Mr. Woodson, Mr. James (Ollie) and others came running down the aisle to me, protesting against the resolution, saying Goebel was a d—goldbug and [illegible] no right to anything and [illegible] their [illegible] against [illegible] voted [illegible] st the resolution offered [illegible] on the resolution [illegible] and demanded a call of counties, and it was adopted by the convention over their protest, and Senator Goebel went on the committees as the honorary member from the State-at-large.

JAMES CHANGES SUDDENLY.

"Now you will see I was Senator Goebel's friend when he needed one, while Ollie James and a lot of timeservers like him were trying to trample him in the dust, and when Goebel had regained his political footing and power, they were fawning and cringing at his feet like a lot of sycophants—when they were not worthy to unbuckle the latches of his shoes, but who would have destroyed him politically, had they been able.

"Be it said to the credit of the Louisville delegation in that convention, it voted solidly to place him on the committees.

"Now because I refused to bow down to the fraudulent, police-ridden Music Hall convention and surrender everything for which honest Democracy has ever stood, a feeble attempt on the part of such people as Ollie James, who would have murdered Goebel politically at Lexington had they had the power, are trying to make people think I was Goebel's personal enemy. I was his friend when he had nothing to give, and they were his enemies. I fought him politically, and his methods when he was all-powerful, and they fawned and cringed at his feet.

LETTER FROM GOEBEL.

"Look at this letter written by himself and signed by him; let it speak for itself."

Your correspondent made the following copy of the letter submitted by Mr. Sweeney, and it was as follows:

"William Goebel, Attorney at Law, Covington, Ky., Nov. 7, 1897.—The Hon. W. H. Sweeney, Springfield, Ky.—My Dear Sir: Your kind letter of yesterday is received. I am pledged in the Senate Enrolling Clerk race, but if I can keep my pledges and still vote for Miss Marsha, I shall do so, and have so written her, giving you credit for my wish to do so.

"I note what you say concerning the candidacy of the Hon. M. G. Leachman for Commissioner of Agriculture, and shall bear it in mind. I shall always have a desire to serve you and your friends also. If you had not done for me what you did at Lexington, I would not have been re-elected to the Senate. Our county committee would have been hostile to me if I had not been placed on the State Central Committee and I would not have been permitted to name a single Democratic candidate, and I could not have run any other way. I had a bitter contest, and every friend of mine who was a candidate was nominated and elected as well as myself. After January 1 every man in office in this city and county, from Circuit Judge down, will be my friend. The time will come when I can repay the service you rendered me, and I shall not fail you. Give my compliments to Judge Paterson.

Very truly,

"WILLIAM GOEBEL."

Owes His Life to a Neighbor's Kindness

Mr. [illegible] Daughterly, well known about Mercer and Sumner counties, W. Va., most likely owes his life to the kindness of a neighbor. He was almost hopelessly afflicted with diarrhoea: was attended by two physicians who gave him little, if any, relief, when a neighbor learning of his serious condition, brought him a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, which cured him in less than twenty-four hours. The Great Fuurity and The Transylvania.

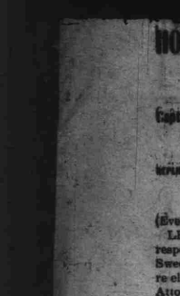
There are no two trotting events that create so much speculation, arouse so much enthusiasm, bring together so many great horses, or that owners desire so much to win, as Kentucky's Futurity and the Transylvania, the former for $14,000, and the latter for $6.000 By winning either, a horse at once attains a prominence that nothing else can give. These famed events are both offered by the K T. H. B. Association, of Lexington, and will be contested during its fall meeting, Oct. 6th to 17th, when $100,000 will be dispensed in forty-two races.

No event that takes place upon Kentucky soil so deserves the patronage of Kentuckians as this trotting meeting. It has made the State world-wide fame; it has widened the market for the State's greatest industry; it brings more capital within its borders in ten days than any other industry. The meeting this fall will surpass even that of 1902, and the high order of sport demands the most liberal patronage ever accorded. The annual meeting will be held at Lexington Oct. 6th to 17th, inclusive.



Picked up by over a third of a century of remarkable and uniform cures, a record such as no other remedy for the diseases and weaknesses peculiar to women ever attained, the proprietors of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription now feel fully warranted in offering to pay $500 in legal money of the United States, for any case of Leucorrhœa, Female Weakness, Prolapsus, or Falling of Womb which they cannot cure. All they ask is a fair and reasonable trial of their means of cure.

"I used three bottles of your 'Favorite Prescription' and one of 'Golden Medical Discovery,'" writes Miss Minnie B. Heaney, of Mount Vernon, Lancaster Co., Pa., "and can say that I am entirely cured. Before taking your medicine I was in better health than ever before. What WALTHER'S PEPTONIZED PORT is and does

It is simply a good, honest, commonsense food tonic—a combination of rich Port Wine and Pure Pepsin,—nothing else. It is not a cure-all, or a medicine for acute or chronic diseases.

It does not take the place of the doctor. It does strengthen weak digestive organs, tones and builds up the impaired, impoverished nerves, muscles and blood, and promotes a perfect condition of vigorous health. It is a valuable remedy for dyspepsia, indigestion and stomach troubles generally—for weakened vitality and impaired strength. It is a preparation of great worth for nursing mothers, tired women, old folks, invalids and convalescents. It is highly recommended by physicians and prescribed by them—both its constituents being of long demonstrated worth.

Top-Notch Price.

Mr. James A. Shuttleworth, of Louisville, sold the old Duke Homestead on the Lebanon pike, two and a half miles from town, yesterday at public auction to Messrs. W. S. Glore, Louie and Dudley Bryant, of this city, for the fancy price of $105 per acre. The farm contains 315 acres of as good land as there is in Kentucky, and while it sold for the price that that much land ever sold for in this county, it is not regarded as high, but by the knowing ones is considered a good investment.

There were several bidders, but the contending one was Mr. McConnell, of Boone county, Kentucky, whose last bid was $108.75. Mr. George A. McRoberts bid for the purchasing parties.

The farm is one of the prettiest in this or any county and will make a lovely home. Mr. Glore will move to it on the first of October. Only two years ago Mr. Shuttleworth was offered $120 per acre for the place and in conversation with him he told the News reporter that it was dirt cheap and expected to get much more than he did for it.—Danville News.

Habit Worse Than the Disease.

Dr. Miles' Nervine Cured Me.

When the nervous system has been shattered by the use of deadly drugs there is nothing to equal Dr. Miles' Nervine in restoring it to health and normal activity.

"I feel so grateful for what Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine has done for me that I must tell it for that part of humanity that suffers as I have. During the three years I suffered from nervous prostration I found no relief except when doctors gave morphine. To get rid of suffering I took morphine myself as it was the only thing that would give ease, and now you, who point with scorn at morphine eating, how could you, when in such agony, knowing it about the only thing that would give relief, resist it? I knew it was a terrible habit and I knew of its deadly grasp, but I never fully realized its significance until I had used it a number of months. Oh, the misery of being addicted to such a habit. I resolved then and there to quit it and resolved I would never be a slave to any such demon. About this time I happened to notice Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine advertised and ordered a bottle. After using five bottles I can truthfully say I am cured of using morphine. Now, however much persons may doubt it, God is my witness I am cured. This testimonial is unsolicited but I feel it my duty to give it for the benefit of the suffering."—MATTIE PITTLEN, Purcell, Ark.

DEVELOP INDUSTRIES.

In This Lies Future Success of the State.

CONSTITUTIONAL AMENDMENT TALK.

Kentucky's Geographical Position and Enormous Undeveloped Wealth Should Enable the State to Occupy a Place In the Front Ranks of Industrial Development.

No one in Kentucky has given more time to all propositions looking to State development than has Mr. Peyton N. Clarke, of Louisville, the Secretary of the Constitutional Amendment Committee authorized at the last State Cotamercial Convention, and there is certainly no person more able to review the benefits that will follow the adoption of this amendment. It is a pleasure, therefore, to give to our readers an interview with Mr. Clarke on this very important topic:

"The present Amendment should not be confused with a former Amendment, somewhat along the same lines and which contained some objectionable features, which the present Amendment is entirely free from.

"You will understand, of course, that the proposed Amendment will not interfere in any manner with the present method of assessing real estate and personal property for State and County purposes. All towns and cities will continue, as here tofore, to pay taxes for State and county purposes under the present law, and the proposed Amendment, if adopted, will make it possible for any town or city in the State to secure an act of the Legislature, providing that in addition revenue for strictly local purposes, towns and cities of any class may substitute for the present ad valorem system, such licenses, franchises, and excise laws, in subjecting personal property to its fair share of the expenses of such towns and cities as may take advantage of the Amendment, when adopted.

"The products of a State are its foundation of wealth, but its industries are the sinews of its financial strength. Without industries, which afford markets, in proximity to the products, the producers are badly handicapped, and if compelled to send their products to distant markets where there is greater competition and increased expenses, as well as numerous losses, it is perfectly plain that the producer must suffer, if, on the other hand, by reason of increased industries at home, affording a market for our products, the conditions are immeasurably more favorable for the producer.

"Now, in order to secure more industries, which means more employes and more mouths to feed, we must encourage the establishment of new enterprises, and at the same time, by increasing the capacity of those already established, secure an ample home market for our home products.

"Other States seek out the wisdom of this policy and Kentuckians should not be allowed to lag behind them. Our geographical position and enormous undeveloped wealth should enable us to occupy a place in the front ranks of industrial development, and the future welfare and prosperity of the State can be settled in a great measure by the adoption of the Constitutional Amendment. Manufacturers and other industries cannot be induced to locate in Kentucky while our taxes on such industries are greater than in other States with which we have to compete. Therefore, in order to secure the benefits our position and advantages entitle us to, we must be able to offer the same inducements as are offered by our neighbors.

"While the proposed Amendment will not change in any manner the present method of assessing real estate for State and county taxes, it must not be concluded that it will not greatly benefit the entire State.

"It is confidently believed that the new law will enable the assessors to disclose a vast amount of property not at present in reach of the assessors, and if this result should follow, there would be an opportunity for an immediate and radical reduction in the tax rate for State and county purposes by which every taxpayer in the State would be directly benefited. The main advantage would be in the inducement to new industries to locate in our midst, new capital to seek investment in our farms, mines and rich timber lands, and by thus increasing our wealth and importance the result would invariably follow of a reduction in the tax rate. It is a very simple proposition that the more property to be taxed, the lower the rate necessary to secure the same revenue.

"A recent change in the Kentucky incorporation law has kept vast sums of money in our State which, before the change referred to, went to other States, and the numerous enterprises now being incorporated in Kentucky will continue to add to its revenue for all time to come, and if anyone has been damaged in any way by the change there has been no discovery of the fact.

"If Kentucky could gain so much by a simple change in the statutes, why should she not gain a great deal more by a change in the revenue law as proposed in the Amendment to be voted on in November.

"This is a grave proposition and deserves the most intelligent thought and action of our citizens."

HIS SECOND THOUGHT.

The Stage Driver Acted on It and Saved His Passengers.

Back in the good old days when nerves and railroads were little known an old stage road ran from Lake Champlain to Ogdensburg, N. Y., passing through the little town of Sodom. This village nestled in a valley between two great hills, over which the white ribbon of the road wound steeply.

Upon one of the trips of the stage the regular driver, who had been at home for some weeks recovering from an illness, was riding inside, while the red haired, mild featured, big boned Irishman acting as his substitute occupied the driver's seat upon the box. The day was a beautiful one, and the passengers were enjoying their drive keenly, their appetites increasing as the distance lessened between them and the town of Sodom, with its promised time for refreshment.

Suddenly as the heavy stage lumbered over the brow of the hill, down which the road plunged at a sharp angle, rushing through the little town at its foot and ascending the hill beyond, the passengers became conscious that their pace had been recklessly increased, faster and faster they went dashing down the hill at a rate rapidly becoming a furious one. Trees and bushes at last became but a dizzying blur along the road. All owing to the reeling stage and held their breath in terror, while on the stage raced, down the hill with ever increasing speed, into the town, past the hostelry with the waiting host left standing in amaze at the door, past the post office without pause, and out upon the road leading up the face of the hill beyond. There the pace slackened, and as the incline grew more steep at last the smoking horses came to a standstill. With one accord the dazed passengers tumbled out and surrounded the driver, who now stood at the head of his reeking leaders.

"What is it, Pat? What is it? Did they get away from you?" came the breathless questions.

"Nope," replied Pat with a set face, "not that, but nothing airthly behind him. There lay the stage tongue dragging uselessly on the ground at the heels of the horses and completely severed from the coach. At a glance the regular driver comprehended the meaning of the danger to which the passengers of that stage had been exposed, means of guidance, had been exposed, and, realizing the miracle of their escape, he turned sick and fainted where he stood.

Later, back at the inn, when the excitement had somewhat subsided and fresh horses were being put to the repaired coach, some one turned to Pat and asked:

"Pat, what was your first thought when the pole dropped?"

"Well, sor," he answered, settling the quid more comfortably in his cheek, "the furst thought was 'Lord ha' mercy on our souls!' Thin thinks I to meself, 'Confound a baste that can't outrun a waggon!' and I licked the poor bastes all the way down the hill!"—Lippincott's.

QUEER SUPERSTITIONS.

The following are some curious superstitions that are still extant among English speaking people:

If you kill frogs your cows will "go dry."

Tickling a baby will cause the child to stutter.

To thank a person for combing your hair will bring bad luck.

To kill a ghost it must be shot with a bullet made of a silver coin.

To dream of unbroken eggs signifies trouble to come; if the eggs are broken the trouble is past.

If you boast of your good health strike wood immediately with your fist or you will become ill.

To dream of a live snake means enemies at large, of a dead snake enemies dead or powerless.

To allow a child to look into a mirror before it is a month old will cause it to have trouble in teething.

A child will have a nature and disposition similar to those of the person who first takes it out of doors.—Philadelphia Inquirer.

Johnson's First Tailoring Job.

President Andrew Johnson had never been ashamed of his humble origin; had, indeed, often narrated the unhappy story of his first job at tailoring.

He had been summoned, he would say, to the residence of an influential citizen and had been bidden to make over one of the citizen's old coats for the son of the house.

Johnson, a little nervous through excess of zeal, took off his coat, turned back his sleeves, measured the youth and set to work. He was getting along well—the job, indeed, was nearly finished—when dinner time came and he reached out for his coat in order to put it on and go home.

To his chagrin he discovered then that it was his own coat which he had cut up for the boy.

Swearing to Excess.

A cricket club in the south of Scotland, which has evidently found that the use of lurid language doesn't add to the amenities of play, has passed the following bylaw:

"Any member swearing to excess may be expelled."

I have not heard whether the club committee has yet arrived at a definition of "moderate swearing." The attempt to find one to meet all cases is likely to result in language both "pulsaful and free."—Glasgow Times.

Curiosity Conquered.

"I thought Jane had such a dreadfully stiff neck."

"She has."

"Nonsense. There was a man painting the steeple of the brick church and she watched him for half an hour."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Just Vanity.

Papa—Dear me, Mary, whatever are you going to do with these trunks? Two, four, six, twelve of them! You can't fill more than one.

Maudie—I know it, my dear; but we must make a decent appearance on arriving at the hotel.

Cruel.

His Wife—Charles, I do think you ought to give me more of your time.

Her Husband—Give you more! Why, you take so much of my time that I couldn't be a second in a duel.—Harper's Bazar.

A Busy Day.

"Ebenezer, dear," cried the wife of the kindly old capitalist as he slouched homeward in the dust, with his tot. ors hands be grimed with gold dust and his back bowed by heavy and laborious calculation, "hurry now and get the stock and then come in, dear and we'll sit down coolly and cut coupons."

"And glad I will be to rest," sighed he, "I've been counting lambs all day. Dum this life! Dockast it anyway! I got half a notion to sell out and move away, I'm that tired out."

Ah, life is a hard problem.

Rescued from Suffering and Death by PAINE'S Celery Compound

THE GREAT MEDICINE.

MR. ALFRED BROWN,

A Prominent and Popular Citizen, Says:

"After the Use of Paine's Celery Compound, I Am Now in the Best of Health."

The greatest of modern physicians, Prof. Edward Phelps, M. D., LL. D., after years of long practice and close scientific study, gave to suffering and diseased men and women his marvelous, life giving prescription, with the conviction and positive knowledge that it had peculiar virtues and ample powers to cure.

Thousands of the most prominent men from the best known and most reliable men and women of our country fully sustain the claims made by Dr. Phelps regarding his incomparable Paine's Celery Compound.

One of the most convincing proofs furnished, comes recently from a gentleman widely known in the capital city of the Dominion of Canada. We refer to Mr. Alfred Brown, 91 O'Connor St., Ottawa, Ont. Mr. Brown's letter fully demonstrates the fact that the greatest sufferer may cast off his or her burden of disease and become well, strong, and happy. It proves, too, that the great medicine maintains more fully than ever before its unrivaled place in the estimation of people of wealth and social standing as well as with the masses. Mr. Brown says:—

"It is a pleasure with thankfulness and pleasure the fact that I have been cured of a very painful illness of eight years' standing by use of Paine's Celery Compound. I had, during the years of my illness, tried almost all the advertised medicines without deriving any good results. I was also treated by several of the best doctors of this city, hoping to find that one of them, at least, would understand my case.

"I was getting worse, and was told I was incurable. I was indeed in a critical condition. I could not go from the house alone, as I was liable to sudden collapse. I tried hospital treatment, but no relief or good result came to me. I could not sleep; anything that I ate increased my agonies; I was extremely weak, restless, tired, and despondent; was obliged to walk about with my hands pressed firmly into my left side to ease my pains; my feet and hands were cold continually; bad inclination to vomit, had profuse, cold sweats, quick breathing, and would be racked with pain for hours at a time.

"After the regular use of Paine's Celery Compound for a time, I am now in the best of health, have good appetite, and can use any kind of food I choose. I can feel good all once more, all through the use of Paine's Celery Compound."

CAUTION

This is not a gentle word—but when you think how liable you are not to purchase the only remedy universally known and a remedy that has had the largest sale of any medicine in the world since 1868 for the cure and treatment of Consumption and Throat and Lung troubles with out losing its great popularity all these years, you will be thankful we called your attention to Boschee's German Syrup. There are so many ordinary cough remedies made by druggists and others that are cheap and good for light colds, perhaps, but for severe Coughs, Bronchitis, Croup—and especially for Consumption, where there is difficult expectoration and coughing during the nights and mornings, there is nothing like German Syrup. The 25 cent size has just been introduced this year. Regular size 75 cents. At all druggists. C. J. Haydon

Wild Birds In Germany.

A correspondent of the London Mail at Dresden writes that the Germans are far in advance of some other people in caring for the wild birds in their towns. During the winter shelters from the snow are erected in public parks and private gardens for them and plentifully supplied with food of various kinds, including mountain ash berries for the tomtits and blackbirds and other seeds for the smaller birds. This mixture is sold at a very cheap rate in shops for the purpose. In springtime one may see many birds nesting in special wooden boxes placed in the higher trees, out of the reach of cats. The boxes are of different sizes, to suit starlings, sparrows or tomtits.

Wouldn't Lie Twice.

Nora had been told to say at the door that her mistress was not at home when certain callers appeared upon the scene.

It evidently went much against the grain for her to make herself responsible for even such a small a white lie, but she promised to do so, and, with certain cautions, she kept her word.

"Is Mrs. Blank at home?" queried the caller.

"For this was tome, Mrs. Smithers, she ain't," said the maid, "but bridy help her if you ashk me again. I'll not ask twoyce for anybody livin'!"—Philadelphia Ledger.

The Tired Gone.

An aged Scotch minister, who was very boastful, once said to his good friend:

"Think of it! I preached two hours and twenty minutes last Sunday!"

"Didn't it weary you very much?" inquired the other solicitously.

"Oh, no," said the minister. "But you should have seen the congregation!"

Waiting Time.

Mrs. Feedum—Why do you move so lazily? Don't you know that time and tide wait for no man?

Tattered Tucker—Dat may be all right about tide, lady; but I'm afeared dere's a bunch o' time waitin' fer me de next time I git jugged.—Kansas City Journal.

Bravery.

"You spoke very admiringly of that man's courage."

"Yes."

"But he was never a soldier or a fireman or a policeman."

"No, but he eats mushrooms that he has gathered himself."—Exchange.

Ideas are the result of thought, and each new idea marks an epoch in the social and industrial advancement of the world.—Maxwell's Talisman.

The shrike or butcher bird was quick to note the availability of the barbed wire fence as just the place for him to impale his victims upon.

Along the bottom lands of the Brazos and Arkansas rivers the cotton stalks grow so large that it is almost as much work to clear the land for a new crop as it would be to clear it of hand brush.

When you make wishes it is a sign you are not getting what you want.—Atchison Globe.

Good Natured.

"What would you do if I were to offer you work?"

"It 'ud be all right, mister," answered Meandering Mike. "I kin take a joke as well as anybody."—Washington Star.
